

Harmony Hatch

Thermally Broken Roof Access

Harmony Hatch

Thermally broken roof access hatches built for reliability and performance, combining robust construction with proven thermal efficiency.

The Adlux Harmony Hatch extends our proven Harmony thermal technology into a purpose-built roof access system designed for both commercial and residential applications.

Precision-engineered and New Zealand-made, it combines robust construction with refined detailing to deliver a safe, efficient, and visually cohesive access solution. With its thermally broken frame, insulated or glazed lid options, and seamless architectural integration, the Harmony Hatch maintains interior comfort while providing dependable access for maintenance or inspection.

Built to withstand New Zealand's demanding climate conditions, it offers long-term performance, weather protection, and energy efficiency — a professional-grade solution equally at home on a commercial facility or a contemporary residence.
